THE UNIVERSITY OF CINCINNATI

WILL OPEN CLASSES AT THE

WOODWARD HIGH SCHOOL BUILDING,

ON

Monday, the 15th day of September next.

For the present, classes will be formed in the studies of the first year of the University course only.

The course of study is intended to begin where that of the Cincinnati High Schools end, and to be strictly continuous of the High School course.

For the general course in Literature, Philosophy and Science, a certificate of graduation from the High Schools, or an examination fully equivalent, will be required.

For the special Scientific and Technological courses students will be examined in all the Mathematics, Physics, and Chemistry taught in the High Schools, and will be required to show proficiency in the ordinary branches of a common English education.

As an index of these requirements it may be noted that the Cincinnati High School course includes in Mathematics, Algebra, Geometry, Plane and Spherical Trigonometry and Plane Surveying; in Physics, Elementary Natural Philosophy, and Chemistry; in Latin, Caesar’s commentaries, Virgil’s Aenid, and six of Cicero’s orations; in Greek, Xenophon’s Anabasis, and two books of Homer’s Iliad.

In the case of students whose studies in the ancient languages have been carried further than would be requisite for admission to the Scientific and Technical course, and who yet desire to take that course, their linguistic study will be reckoned an equivalent for some of the requisite Mathematics, at the discretion of the Examining Board, and extra tuition in the omitted Mathematics will be furnished after their admission to the University.

The regular Mathematics of the first year of the Scientific course will begin with Analytical Geometry, followed by the Differential and Integral Calculus, &c.

The University will have no dormitories or boarding halls. It will offer to students its lectures and instruction only, expecting that they will generally continue the home life of the family in case of residents, and in the case of non-residents general advice and assistance in selecting suitable boarding places will be given, and such supervision of students exercised as the maintenance of proper discipline and character of the institution may require.

For non-resident students tuition fees will be charged at the same rates as are now fixed in the Cincinnati High Schools, namely, about sixty dollars per annum.

For resident students, permanent members of families living in the city, or its suburbs, the classes will be open to both sexes.

The arrangements made by the courtesy and co-operation of the Cincinnati Board of Education and Union High School Board, provide for the use of the Woodward High School building after 1 1/2 o’clock P. M. of each day by the University classes. The numerous recitation and lecture rooms thus put at the disposal of the University, will afford ample facilities for the convenient and prompt performance of the duties and labors of the first year classes.

It is expected at the close of each year additions will be made to the Faculty and to the curriculum, so that all the classes of the several courses and schools may be put in motion as students are prepared for them, and the completed machinery of the University be in operation before the graduation of the class first matriculated.

The corps of teachers during the first year will be provisional, but the permanent Faculty will be selected and announced at as early a day as practicable.

Applicants for admission to the course are requested to hand in their names to the Clerk of the Board before the 8th day of September next, when the examinations will take place.

Further particulars can be obtained on application to

T. B. DISNEY, Clerk of the Board of Directors.
